STUDIO CHANGES LOCATION.

Sosolik Moves Into New Quarters and Is Ready for Business.

The building which has been under construction for several days on 26th street, next door to the Bryan Telephone Company's building, is now occupied by Mr. Charles Sosolik as a photo studio.

The new building was designed and planned by Mr. Sosolik. Fronting on 26th street is a large, well furnished reception room and just to the left of this room, after passing back a few feet, is found a neat dressing room which the proprietor has furnished elegantly with large mirrors and other things necessary when one is in the act of having their "beauty struck." The building is built in an L shape and in the right wing is found the exposing room, which is neatly furnished and is covered with heavy plate glass. On the left of the L is found the dark room, which is very commodious and is equipped with all the late scientific apparatus used in making high class pictures.

Mr. Sosolik announces that he is prepared to take care of any kind of work one might want. He enlarges pictures in his place and has a real city style photo studio. This new enterprise is deserving of a part of the public business and will no doubt enjoy a share of the people's patronage.
